

Ben Adamsky

Co-founder and CTO at Dreamwork. hi@benadamsky.com

Work

- |           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 2026–now  | Dreamwork , Co-founder, CTOA job search that doesn't hate you.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 2023–2026 | Ponder , Co-founder, CTOSocial surveys and prediction games on Farcaster. 100k+ users, 590k on-chain votes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• 590k on-chain votes from 21k people, 42k wallets set up in-app</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 2022–2024 | Freeport , Software engineerFractional fine art. Built the launch that sold a collection of Warhols in six weeks, and the virtual gallery that hung them. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• The Warhol launch did $150k+ in its first six weeks</li><li>• Platform features end to end: API routes, backend models, the analytics pipeline</li><li>• Growth work w/ the CEO + CTO: referrals, collector programs</li></ul>                                                                                                     |
| 2018–2022 | Upwork , Freelance React developerFour years of dashboards, onboarding flows, and interfaces for startups through enterprises, plus web and brand copy for clients like Lyft and Carnival. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Top Rated in year one, Expert-Vetted after that (top 1% on the platform)</li><li>• Dashboards, onboarding flows, landing pages, API integrations, and responsive interfaces for web and native apps</li><li>• Web and brand copy for businesses, including Lyft and Carnival Cruise Line</li></ul> |
| 2021–2022 | Kettle , Co-founder, COOOnline events built for communities. Ran product from idea to launch with a team of four engineers. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Built virtual event software with real-time activities</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 2020–2021 | Branch , Founding engineerA virtual HQ for remote teams. Peer-to-peer spatial audio, and the MVP that raised $15.5M. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Core team on the MVP that raised $15.5M (Naval Ravikant, Sahil Lavingia, Homebrew)</li><li>• Major architectural decisions for the core app and the custom style library</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 2018–2019 | Konjure , Co-founder, Director of OperationsA decentralized website builder on IPFS. Finalist in several accelerators. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• KONJ tokenomics + a desktop app for running validator nodes on IPFS</li><li>• Recruited for and represented the company at blockchain events in NYC and SF</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 2014–2016 | Self-employed , Web and game developerWebsites, game servers, and plugins for bootstrapped hosts, as side income in high school. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Those hosts served thousands of users and were later bought out by bigger competitors</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

Projects

Surveycaster

Open source survey bot for Farcaster.

Libs vs Cons

A satirical card game, launched on Kickstarter.

Skills

TypeScript, React, Next.js, Node.js, PostgreSQL, Prisma, Vercel, AWS.

Education

Coursework toward a B.S. in Computer Science. Rutgers, New Brunswick, Sep 2016 - Jun 2018.